

Who Benefits from Teletherapy?

Homeschooling Families looking for:

Convenience

Teletherapy can be done anywhere with a stable internet connection, you can receive therapy for your child when it is most convenient for you. Families with busy schedules are simply a click away from professional therapy sessions.

Less travel time

Speech and Occupational Therapists recommend more than one session per week. Those extra trips can add up in expenses for families. With teletherapy, all sessions occur in the comfort of your own home alleviating the added time and expense of traditional appointments.

Consistency

Teletherapy has fewer obstacles than face to face therapy. Inclement weather, hectic schedules, and vehicle break downs don't get in the way of appointments. Online therapy is more consistent. This means your child's schedule remains consistent eliminating potential regression from missed appointments.

Engagement

Children love technology! New research indicates that children engage more fully through multi-media online formats. As a result, teletherapy enables kids to make progress toward functional goals in a way that is highly engaging and feels fun!

At MetroEHS, our team of expert Speech Therapists, Occupational Therapists, Physical Therapists, and Social Workers love to work with children and are well versed in teletherapy practices. We have a robust list of fun and engaging activities that are perfect for capturing the attention of children and then directing it towards activities that produce successful and motivating experiences. Our platform is fun and engaging to keep children actively making steps toward achieving their individual goals.
